Christmas Spider Web

A long time ago in Germany a mother was busily cleaning for Christmas. Trying to escape the broom, all the spiders fled to the attic. When the house became quiet the spiders slowly crept downstairs for a peek. Oh, what a beautiful tree! In their excitement they scurried up the trunk with happiness and climbed amongst the glittering beauty. By the time they had reached the top of the tree it was completely shrouded in their dusty gray webs. When Santa arrived with gifts for the children, he saw how happy the spiders were, but knew the mother would be heartbroken to see the tree covered in dusty cobwebs. So with a wisp of breath, Santa turned the webs into strands of Gold and Silver. The tree sparkled and shimmered even more beautiful then before. That's is why we have tinsel on our trees, and why every tree should have it's own Christmas spider.
